Grand Knight's Message

My Brother Knights, Families, and Friends,

I continue to hope and pray that you are all staying safe and healthy. Remember to ask God for healing and protection during this challenging time, for He is with us. Since we are not able to be together for events or Mass, I am looking forward to seeing you all very soon. If anyone you know needs assistance during this trying period, please contact your Council #3744 members; we are here for all of you.

Information may be found in this bulletin on our Contacts page (p 14). God bless you all!

As a sign of solidarity, please also put out your flags every day. May we forever stand united as one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Chaplain's Message

O Mary, you always shine on our path as a sign of salvation and of hope. We entrust ourselves to you, Health of the Sick, who at the cross took part in Jesus' pain, keeping your faith firm. You, Salvation of the Roman People, know what we need, and we are sure you will provide so that, as in Cana of Galilee, we may return to joy and to feasting after this time of trial. Help us, Mother of Divine Love, to conform to the will of the Father and to do as we are told by Jesus, who has taken upon himself our sufferings and carried our sorrows to lead us, through the cross, to the joy of the resurrection. Amen.

Under your protection, we seek refuge, Holy Mother of God. Do not disdain the entreaties of we who are in trial, but deliver us from every danger, O glorious and blessed Virgin. Amen.

Prayer of Pope Francis

Finding God's Magic in a Valley of Darkness

While sitting in my living room on the day before Easter, I heard the repeated shrieks of a little girl in front of the house. She was about 3-years-old, with snowy blonde hair, decked out in a white Easter dress and pushing a toy baby pram. Each time she screamed her dad pointed out a different flower's color to his wide-eyed daughter, whose sensory overload was matched only by the sheer enjoyment she felt from seeing nature in all its glory. Her name was Ally, and she didn't want to leave because the flowers were just too amazing. Unbeknownst to her and her incredible father, they made an onlooker's day by revealing a bit of God's magic in what has otherwise been a valley of darkness.

It wasn't just Ally's amazement that warmed my heart, but her father's effort to nurture, teach, and share simple wonderment with her. It got me thinking, as it likely has many of you, just how many young kids live in our neighborhood, while bringing back long forgotten memories of my own happy childhood. The bleak valley created by this pandemic and mandatory separation has forced many young families to drastically alter their routines. Where have they all been? Has working all day, placing children in the care of others, and reliance on organized activities stolen a portion of our lives? For all of the burdens this disease has wrought it has also brought us together in ways we could never have imagined.

Families are spending time walking together, or happily riding bikes in packs down streets no longer filled with distracted drivers too caught up in their thoughts to notice people with whom they share much in common. Kids use their imaginations playing simple games, chalking sidewalks, and waving to friends at a distance while parents sit in lawn chairs conversing with neighbors like people in small towns during days gone by.

Hopefully, when this horrible crisis is over, we'll all have learned how much fun it is to engage in life's simpler pleasures. Perhaps, like little Ally, we'll find time to stop and enjoy the flowers while discovering God's magic we never realized was around us all along.

Pro-Life & Decency Report

A Transgender Perspective on COVID-19, by Laura Perry

Perhaps this article should actually be titled, a COVID-19 perspective on transgenderism. You might ask, what in the world does one have to do with the other? Nothing. Absolutely nothing. But, I offer you this: What this virus outbreak has shown us is that, life can change in a moment and your world can be turned upside down, and the things you thought were important, are really not important at all. Transgenderism is, at its most fundamental level, a lifestyle in which you see the entire world through the lens of self. Everything and everyone else exist to please you and resolve the emptiness inside. You heap to yourself those who will affirm and celebrate your feelings and push away those who will speak the truth to you.

A transgender identity is fun at first, but over time you will find you become a slave to it. If you have already been living that lifestyle, at least for a short time, recall for a moment the first time you were reminded that your new image is fake. If you are like me, you quickly brushed this off, assured in the knowledge you possess within your own heart that this new identity is the real you and that one day the dysphoria will go away and it will be real. Heed Jeremiah's warning in the Bible: "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?" (Jeremiah 17:9) Your heart is deceiving you. Yes, your feelings are real, but your feelings do not determine who you are. We must align our thoughts and feelings with reality, not attempt to alter reality to align with our feelings and desires.

This disconfirmation of your "new reality" may come in several forms including someone calling you by your birth name, using your old pronouns, frustration with fake genital products, having to bind every day, and much more. I know from experience you believe this will all go away as your body "transforms" into the opposite gender, but the truth is, that never happens. This becomes a never-ending battle to try and keep up the image. Even doctors and scientists are now admitting that hormones and surgeries will never transform you into the opposite gender.

So, what does this have to do again with COVID-19? In living as transgender you are attempting to construct a life for yourself that is not ever going to be real, is never going to satisfy, and is never going to resolve the problem in the first place. You will end up swimming in a sea of your own lies, in constant inner turmoil, and pushing away anyone who knows the truth. Even if your family is affirming, you will eventually distance yourself from them. Why? Because you will try to escape any confirmation of the truth. This includes those who know the truth, even if they never tell you. Just being around them is a reminder of who you are. If you are a family member of someone who is identifying as transgender, this is one of the many reasons affirmation of a transgender identity is the opposite of the loving response.

Instead, look at the world around you. Look to the needs of others. This virus has shined a spotlight on how unimportant the temporal things of this world are. What matters is family, friends, and ultimately, God. The future is uncertain: even if we all return to work, our economy is likely never going to be the same. Is blowing your life-savings on plastic surgery to make yourself feel better really what you want when the world around us is falling apart? And the reality is, the surgery will ultimately not make you feel better in the long-run. It might squelch the dysphoria for a while, but eventually you will be reminded that it is only a cosmetic alteration: like a mask you will tire of wearing.

Take this advice from Jesus instead: "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, if any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it. For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul? (Matthew 16:24-26).

Fraternal Insurance Agent Report

Supreme Knight Carl Anderson has pointed to five characteristics found in men who, in time of crisis, not only survive but lead.

First, we remain rooted in the truth of the faith. In this we remain true to Fr. McGivney's vision of protecting families within the sure tracks of the Catholic faith.

Second, we can be counted on to step into the breach. When disasters strike, the Knights are there with prayer and work, supporting first responders, and providing shelter and assistance to those affected.
